

'Team Concept' Planned in New Hospital

"The 'team concept approach' and a 'dispatch center, latest developments in medical hospital design, will be incorporated in the new $7.6 million Torrance Memorial Hospital," according to Leonard A. Ensminger, hospital administrator.

The ultimate nine-story, 250-bed hospital will be located on a 10-acre parcel at the southeast corner of Hawthorne and Lomita boulevards.

"The new 175,000 square foot hospital, will be fully air-conditioned," Ensminger said. "It will be the most up-to-date medical center on the west coast."

Initial plans call for completing the first seven floors with the top two floors shelved in for future expansion.

There will be 56 beds per floor with nurses stations in a central position.

The new hospital will include an intensive care unit for care of the critically ill, including the latest in cardiac care equipment.

The obstetrical department will have three delivery rooms, three labor rooms, 28 beds for new mothers and 32 bassinets for the nursery.

There will be a special fracture room, four radiological (X-ray) rooms for diagnosis and treatment, special procedures room, and an emergency department with greatly expanded facilities.

Surgical suites will include 4 major surgeries, one special surgery for open heart cases and one minor surgery.

Plans call for a pediatric wing with 24 beds and an occupational and physical therapy department geared to handle the rehabilitation of persons with industrial injuries.

Ensminger said that the dispatch center will automate many services, create a production line flow of supplies and leaves nurses freer for patient care.

The dispatch center contains four main areas; receiving, processing, storage and distribution.

The center is the control point from which all clean supplies and materials are moved to the areas of need and the point to which all soiled supplies are sent. It includes bulk storage area, central sterilization, processed stores, soiled areas, pharmacy and other delivery functions such as mail and flowers.

"The importance of production line flow of supplies and equipment is better utilization of personnel and their time. Ultimately, it means providing better care at lowest possible cost," Ensminger said.

It is expected to take three years to complete design and construction of the building.

The 10-acre site is part of a 35-acre hospital-medical complex. The remaining 25 acres are being developed at an estimated cost of $35 million by Torrance, a group of South Bay businessmen and doctors.

The new facility is being designed by the Glendale architectural firm of Vergé & Clatworthy, AIA.

ANN LANDERS

Grossly Off Target

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the boy whose father died. He wrote to tell you the stupid things people said to his mother at the funeral. I hope some of those ignorant folks will pay attention to his letter and to mine, as well.

Recently we lost our adorable four-year-old daughter. She was retarded, but it didn't matter to us. We loved her just the same. I can count on one hand the people who said, "I'm sorry"—and let it go at that. Almost every person said, "She is better off—" or "It's really a blessing—" or—"Now you won't have to worry anymore." One woman suggested that now I would have more free time and could join the garden club.

Please, Ann, tell your readers if they attend the funeral of a retarded or a handicapped child, it isn't necessary to remind the parents that their child was different from other children. A simple "I'm sorry" is enough.—TEMPLE, TEXAS.

Dear Temple: Here is your letter and I can add nothing except my thanks to you for writing it. I do hope you understand that these people meant to say something supportive and comforting, but, unfortunately, their remarks were grossly off target.

Dear Ann Landers: I am sitting home alone watching TV, while my husband is at a party. It is quite an affair I am sure, but he forgot to tell me about it until 5:30 tonight when he telephoned to ask me to make sure his suit was ready and his shoes were shined. Of course it was too late for me to get my hair fixed and find a baby-sitter for the children.

This is not the first time he has pulled this stunt and it probably won't be the last. I am a nice looking girl and can carry on a good conversation. If my husband is ashamed of me I can't figure out the reason. I guess he has a better time at parties when he can behave like a bachelor. Will you please tell me what to do about this humiliating situation?—SUB-BASEMENT BLUES

Dear Sub: Party invitations are usually sent to the house, addressed to Mr. and Mrs. or if it's a phone invitation, one wife calls the other. I am mystified as to why you learn of these parties at the last moment.

Hunt up some sitters who can be called on short notice and don't be so fussy about your hair. The next time he pulls this cutie, get yourself ready and go with him.

Dear Ann Landers: Please say something to people who talk instead of eat. Six of us go out for dinner together a couple times a week. One woman in the group starts to talk the minute the food arrives and she doesn't touch her plate until everyone else has finished. Then we all have to wait for her to eat her main course before we can get our dessert. She is, unfortunately, a very slow eater. Sometimes we have to wait as long as 30 minutes.

This habit of hers always makes us late for the theater or the card game or whatever we have planned. If you have a cure, please pass it on.—X.ASPERATED

Dear X: If no one has told this woman to stop talking and to start eating, someone should. Since you are the one who wrote, I suggest that you be the one to tell her.

Teen Post Kicks Off First Project: Work

Red Cross Youth Services invites college students and other young adults to come and roll up their sleeves to launch the first Teen Post project of the summer.

Red Cross college volunteers will paint the inside of the Culver Teen Post at 423 E. Rosecrans, Compton, side by side with the Teen Post youths, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

More college-age volunteers are needed to help remodel the building's walls. Red Cross college volunteers, along with youths from other college and university groups, provide the youth leadership to the Teen Post, which are funded by the Economic Youth Opportunities Agency.

Students participating at the Culver Teen Post are from Loyola University, El Camino College, Marymount College, and Harbor College.

Participants are asked to please bring a paint brush or a roller—and a sack lunch. Soft drinks will be provided.

NEW OFFICERS... Richard Cook, newly elected student body president at Bishop Montgomery High School, confers with other members of the Student Council as he begins to make plans for the fall semester. With Cook are (from left) Donna Beard, secretary; Katie Roach, vice president; and Carol Jacobsmeyer, historian. New officers were named in elections held just prior to the end of the spring term.
